Feast of St. Ann — Tuesday, July 26

“And I tell you, ask and you will receive; seek and you will find; knock and the door will be opened to you.”

(from the Holy Gospel according to Luke 11:1-13)

“Lord, teach us to pray” was the request of the disciple in today’s gospel who had observed Jesus at prayer. There is an important lesson in that fact alone: Jesus at prayer is our model for prayer. The response of Christ to that disciple was not a lecture on the theology of the spiritual life, but a simple prayer, the familiar words of the Lord’s Prayer, the Our Father. Since we also instinctively want to know how to pray, a reflection on the composition of the Our Father will benefit our own efforts at prayer.

The wording of the Lord’s Prayer in today’s reading is from Luke’s gospel. It is different from our usual liturgical form which is from Matthew’s gospel, but the two versions are substantially the same. Luke’s version is shorter. It has five petitions, while Matthew has seven. Missing from Luke is, “Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven,” and “Lead us not into temptation.” Luke’s final petition, “Subject us not to the trial,” differs from Mathew’s closing, “deliver us from evil.” Luke’s version stresses not failures of human weakness but the ultimate test of faith itself which is the message of both versions. The conclusion, “For Thine is the Kingdom . . .” is not a part of the scriptural text but is an added liturgical response, as we pray at Mass before the sign of peace.

The opening address of the prayer, “Our Father,” was revolutionary and is thematic of the whole prayer. In the Old Testament the relationship of the people with God was not one of close familiarity, but of such a reverential distance that they would never even pronounce the name of God. The coming of Christ, the incarnation, brought us a new relationship with divinity. Christ is our brother and God is our Father, which is truly revolutionary and unique among all religions. The German Vater Unser conveys this intimacy by using the familiar form du rather than the formal Sie.

When we begin the prayer by calling God “Our Father,” we acknowledge a mutual relationship. We place ourselves under the care of God, but we also designate ourselves as children of God and assume the responsibility to act as such. We begin by acknowledging God and his kingdom, and only then do we address our own concerns.

After the opening salutation, the prayer has seven petitions. The first three petitions concern the cause of God: hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come; thy will be done. The following four petitions concern our hopes and needs: give us our daily bread; forgive us our trespasses; lead us not into temptation; and deliver us from evil.

This structure corresponds to the two tablets of the Ten Commandments, where the first three commandments pertain to God’s honor and the final seven to our conduct. This outline also reflects the two great commandments of Christ: love of God and love of neighbor. The format of the Lord’s Prayer is our fundamental relationship with God and with other people as taught by both the Old and the New Testament.

The Our Father is essentially about a love of God which inspires a love of others. This is evident in the personal pronouns, which are unselfishly plural. The prayer never says: I, me, or mine; but only: we, us, and ours. Christianity is a community faith. It is not “Jesus and me,” but “Jesus and us.” St. Augustine wrote, “One Christian is no Christian.” St. Bernard said, “Any prayer that does not echo the Our Father is not an authentic prayer.”
